On Sunday, LA TV FILM (LATF) hosted the very first annual Hollywood Beauty Awards, honoring the women "heroes" of the red carpet with a celebration benefiting Children's Hospital Los Angeles. K-EARTH 101's radio star Lisa Stanley emceed the black-tie event at the legendary

Fonda Theatre in Hollywood.

Highlights included: Oscar winning actress Jane Fonda presenting an Outstanding Achievement Award for Makeup to Bernadine M. Anderson, the first African-American woman to break into the local 706; and Patrick Stewart giving a heart-felt speech, honoring Hollywood makeup royalty Michael Westmore, who worked on "Star Trek" for its entire 18 year run.

"I was impressed with the mega-stars who joined us to celebrate the architects of beauty (and) I look forward to next year and building the HBAs into LA Beauty Week," said Michele Elizabeth, LATF CEO and of the Hollywood Beauty Awards.

Hills resident Valerie Haysley fashion designer the opening for "The Hon Sobel" which runs through March 7.
